"Too Tired to Move"
HOW often we hear a woman use this expression! She is in a weakened and run-down condition, not fit to do her work. Bravely she struggles on. She becomes nervous and discouraged.
Whether she lives in a luxurious apartment, a cozy bungalow or a crowded city flat, every woman can understand the handicap of poor health. The woman in moderate circumstances suffers more, of course, than her well-to-do friend because she cannot afford to hire help.
In spite of her efforts, her house begins to look neglected. Her children say, "Mother is so cross."
Eagerly she listens when a neighbor tells her of other women who found the road to health and happiness.
Health! That's the answer to so many of our problems. Without health, a woman cannot make her home the happy haven she dreams of.
Mrs. GOLDIE SHOOT of May View, Illinois, is one of the many women who have improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was in a run down condition which caused her much unhappiness.
Mrs. SHOOT says, "I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I think it is the most wonderful medicine I ever tried." She declares that she is now in better health than ever before.

Oh, don't say that. It's just—the shock of everything.

He caught his underlip with a swift intake of breath.

But a shock wouldn't make you turn away from me? If it you cared for me at all it would draw you closer.

Mary.

Silence between them. Through the trees the light fell all around in un-

Oh, don't give me a chance. You've changed. His face was anxious.

A hurt note was in his voice. I haven't. She hung out her hand in a little helpless gesture. It's our circumstances. Oh, don't you—don't you understand?

He caught her hand in his. So soft, so white. His pulses raced.

I only understand that I am de-terribly unhappy. Mary.

She drew away from him. He saw the shadows round her eyes, the tired tallor of her face.

And what of poor Luella's mis-

the words were low. He just heard them at no more.

A dark flush rose to his forehead.

So you do blame me for what occurred. It was because I asked you here. It was because that—creature—was once married to me.

Another. You look on me as an outcast. You are cruel.

On Philip you misunderstand. A tear ran down the whiteness of her young face. She brushed it

lastly away.

I don't. I see it all. And now you're killing yourself with worry.

You won't leave Luella a sick room for a moment. You look as though you haven't slept in days and days.

She moved away from him and leant against a tree. He could see the weary drop of her shoulders and the pathetic

work of her face.

But he was hurt—so hurt!

Why should she treat him so?

He followed her.

What you give me an explanation.

She turned and looked at him—a long

at sorrowing glance.

Oh, you must know—the reason I—around you. She drew in a sharp and cutting breath like a little stab of anguish. It's—because of Luella.

Just as I said. This life set pain fully. And now you will scarcely leave her—

Oh, Philip, listen. Still you don't understand. It's that she—Luella—oh she loves you. Philip. She talks of you incessantly to me. She says—

she never knew until this happened—

how terrible she cares—for you.

His face went white as chalk. He stared incredulously at Mary Forrest.

And then as though something had snapped inside him he gave a harsh and grating laugh.

Luella threw me over the moment I lost his property. Now—when it's mine again—she wants me back. She takes me for a fool—

"Hush. His listener's tones were checked—immensely sad, as well.

She says over and over that she loves

you. And—and you did ask her to marry you. Philip—"

He suddenly went against the tree

his young face white and drawn.

But that was long ago—a woman

tary out of sadness. I—I didn't know the real Luella. It was—oh it was nothing but infatuation. Mary! Never the real thing! Not like you and me!

Let you did ask her. She says—she says you'll stick by what you said. She

—she doesn't know—about you and me.

She mustn't know. In her present condition. I don't love her. I—I know now that I never did. You do believe that don't you?

He almost groined aloud.

Of all the impossible situations!

You can't mean it. Mary. You know

I don't love her. I—I know now that

I never did. You do believe that don't you?

It doesn't alter things. She was calmer now. She held her head up bravely. There was a strength about that pretty chin of hers he hadn't seen before.

Good Lord. You don't mean—I couldn't marry anybody that I didn't love.

She wants you. Philip. Remember the days of your she has gone through her nerves are all in pieces. She—she loves you. Philip. She says you won't go back on her. She says you're honorable. You asked her once. She warns—terribly—afraid that once the landings are off you'll shrink away from her. She said to me only this morning that if you did do that, she'd kill herself. She would too. I'm afraid.

Her silence is all gone. And Mary's

Kenton, July 16.—A cargo of water melons and fruit valued at more than $125 was destroyed here yesterday when the truck in which they were being hauled to town was ditched about the highway west of here and wrecked.

As the car lunged into the ditch the force of the impact tore the body of the truck from the chassis and hurled it against a post. Fruit and water melons were strewn for a distance of many feet.

GIRL SWALLOWS POISON WHEN CLASSMATES JEER

Cleveland School Girl, Retarded by Frequent Moving, Is Recovering

Cleveland, O., July 10.—(Press.) A 13-year-old Marion girl, formerly in Philadelphia, is recovering from a poison taken after being ridiculed by classmates.

Due to the family's frequent moving, she was only in the second grade with children much younger and smaller than her. They teased her about her size.

In despair the girl took poison and did not tell her parents until she was seriously ill last night.

"Scrubs" in Roundup to be Slaughtered for Meat

Edmonton, Alta., July 10.—The last roundup of wild horses in the West is now in progress on the range areas of Southern Alberta between Medicine Hat and Standard. More than 10,000 wild horses will be driven into one central corral before the end of summer, according to an announcement by the provincial department of agriculture which is superintending the roundup.

Cowboys and ranchmen have been employed by the department for the work. Bands of horses have been ranging for years in the Bow river valley and the area south of Calgary in a grassy, unenclosed country.

After the roundup the horses will be packed over. Branded animals will be returned to their owners. Others will be sold at public auction, while the scrubs will be disposed of for horse meat for shipment to Europe and Japan where a market for the meat is developing rapidly.

A conservation measure with which the horses little to exercise and the area south of Calgary in a grassy, unenclosed country.

Art of Counterfeiting is Dying Out, Report Indicates

Syracuse, N. Y., July 16.—Counterfeiting, especially of coins, is becoming a lost art.

Records of Secret Service Agents working up state show that counterfeiting is becoming an infrequent crime.

That fewer counterfeiters are being circulated, and furthermore that new counterfeiters sporadically appearing are not as good as those which were spread over the country a century ago.

John A. Adams, United States game service operative in this section, who collected $5000 in bogus money throughout the district last year, is amazed at the crudeness of some bills which the public will accept.

"In the old days, 20 years ago, a counterfeit was a work of art, but now, I'd be ashamed of a five year old who would accept some of these we have been getting," lamented the government agent.

To back up his opinion, Mr. Adams exhibited a pen and ink sketch of a $5 Federal Reserve note, which looked like the serial of a five year old kid's garden club. It was hand painted, but the work and the portrait of Lincoln did not resemble a human face. The maker of the note, who said it usually took him six or eight hours to draw it, is now serving a term in Alcatraz prison.

The most common counterfeit has been a $5 Federal Reserve note, circulated throughout this section by a band of peddlers. The makers of the note, who it is charged sold copies at 20 percent above the dollar, are all in prison, three in a while one of these times up after evidently having been in circulation several months. "Back in the old days of free silver, when a half dollar was money, there were money workmen," went on Mr. Adams paying his tribute to some of the makers of the "paper" in days of the past.

"Look at this bill," said the agent exhibiting a slightly worn coin showing signs of brass. "This has been in circulation more than 20 years. The man who made it got 15 years and he's out. For this man has been passing as genuine and probably a million people have handled it without detecting it. It is brass, with a nickel plating. It is a memorial to the days of master counterfeiters who did their work well, not like the amateurs who try to get rich quick today making money that even an inmate of a poor house should be able to detect as counterfeit."

NEGRO STEPS, NEGRO MUSIC GETS 'EM ALL

Piano manufacturer Declares State Virginian Reel Forgotten for "Pep"

Chicago, July 16.—America is doing the negro's steps to the negro's music, according to A. G. Gould, piano manufacturer, in an address here. "The negro is the only active race in America, which has retained its racial characteristics and imparted its art expressions on the life of the nation," said Mr. Gould.

"Germany has the waltz, old France the minuet, England the Scotch's hornpipe, Ireland the jig, Scotland the Highland Fling, Spain the fandango, Italy the tarantella, Czechoslovakia the polka and even Hawaii the hula hula. "America has the fox trot and the Charleston, invented by the negro. The Virginian Reel is forgotten, and the antiquaries who are attempting to revive it might well try to reconstitute the Italian waltz dancers. In the homes of America now, not people are dancing waltzes, and the music of America is the rhythms of the negro."

COLLECTORS SEEKING ADDRESS OF LINCOLN

Unable To Locate Copies of Civil War President's Cooper Union Speech

Springfield, Ill., July 16.—Lincoln collectors again are baffled.

For they are unable to locate official copies of Abraham Lincoln's famous Cooper Union speech, which delivered at Cooper Union, N. Y., during his last public address, and which is a public question of that day. Lincoln at that time was considered as a "comer" in the political world and Republicans were anxious to know just where he stood.

Following its publication in New York, 250 copies of the address were sent to Lincoln, which he distributed among his friends. The letter from C. C. Holt, chairman of the committee which caused the speech to be printed, stated with the copies is still in existence. What of the copies?

No doubt, this vicinity would yield some copies if old attics, trunks, libraries and desks were searched thoroughly, but collectors fail to derive satisfaction from this hazard. Clues for such a search are entirely lacking. Three Copy Away

The New York Tribune printed the speech after it had been written and carefully edited by Lincoln, who also read proof on the address. When Lincoln had read the proof he tossed the original manuscript into the wastebasket. No one, not even Lincoln, dreamed then that some day men would be searching for authenticated reprints of the talk.

There are men, one collector declares, who would gladly pay $100,000 if they could obtain the speech merely for the satisfaction of being its owner.
